Giving through a Donor Advised Fund is Easy and Rewarding

SOAR! donor Greg Krodel shared his DAF experience in a recent interview.

Fifteen years ago, Greg established a donor advised fund (DAF). Setting up a DAF made sense to him: he avoided capital gains tax on the stock he contributed; he received a deduction on its value; and most importantly, he established a fund to direct his giving.

“I enjoy giving to others and through my DAF, which I can easily access,” said Greg, “I can give to whatever charities I want.”

Setting up a DAF was easy. He called his investment management firm and received step-by-step instructions on the phone. Greg’s DAF is now his primary method of giving. He can recommend gifts from his DAF online or by calling his investment firm.

Greg uses Charity Navigator to see how well his organizations support them manage their funds. When he makes a gift through his DAF, his investment firm also checks to make sure the organization is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit. “There’s so many charities and they make sure that you give to a legitimate charity,” he said. Giving through a donor advised fund gives Greg peace of mind.

Greg believes that giving to SOAR! through a DAF is an easy way to support aging religious. “Anyone who decided to God and to serving us deserves to have a comfortable place to live and a nice retirement,” he said. He encourages others to explore giving through a DAF is right for them.

Greg Krodel is a semi-retired real estate broker living in northern California. He feels fortunate that his mother taught him the value of owning real estate. Investing in the stock market brings Greg joy, and he’s learned a lot in the 30 plus years he’s been doing so. Greg was taught by his parents to give back to others, and he feels fortunate to be able to do so.

Please remember SOAR! in your will.
